

OHIO SHERIFF USES TEAR GAS TO ROUT 2,000 ANGRY MINERS

New Supply of Arms Sent to St. Clairsville in Case of New Attack

13 STRIKERS HELD

National Guardsmen May Be Called Out

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS, O., June 12.—James Berry, chief of the state division of mines, will go to Jefferson-co tonight to investigate outbreaks of labor disturbances in eastern Ohio coal mining regions it was learned here today.

Berry's probe it was understood will be for the purpose of advising the state administration of conditions in the strike-torn districts although the investigation has not been requested by Governor George Whitte.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., June 12.—Reinforcements and a new supply of tear gas bombs were rushed here today to quell a second attack on the Belmont-co jail, where 13 striking miners were held.

Two thousand men and women stormed the jail last night in an effort to force the release of the miners, arrested during recent disorders at the new Lafferty mine of the M. A. Hanna Coal Company.

Sheriff Howard Duff, 40 Sheriff's deputies and several American Legion members, armed with tear gas bombs, and machine guns, drove the crowd back. Leo Thompson, of Pittsburgh, National Miners' Union organizer, and said to have led the jail attack, was arrested.

SENDS FOR AID

Sheriff Duff sent for aid and more bombs after the leaders of the rushing crowd said they would return to the jail today in an effort to release the prisoners.

During the melee last night, Duff was struck by several of the demonstrators. Deputies rushed to his aid and bombarded the milling mass with tear gas bombs. Seven women and five men were overcome as the crowd scattered.

The 13 striking miners held in county jail here were arrested late yesterday when an incited mob rushed the New Lafferty mine. The invasion was broken up by Duff and his deputies who held the crowd back at the point of guns and with threats of using tear gas bombs.

The strike leaders staged the march on the mine, which employs 350 men, hopeful of forcing its suspension.

As a result of yesterday's disorders, the entire mining region of southeastern Ohio was under armed patrol today. Sheriff Duff declared he was determined to halt violence.

The raid on the county jail here last night, climaxed a day beset with disorders of bombings and attacks.

CONSULT GOVERNOR

Sheriff Duff indicated today that unless peace is reached soon between union and non-union workers and mine operators, an appeal will be made to Governor George White for National Guard protection.

Belmont-co commissioners appropriated $25,000 yesterday to combat alleged communistic activities, said to be responsible for the recent outbreaks. Their action followed that of Jefferson-co commissioners, who appropriated $2,500 for the employment of 10 additional deputy sheriffs to quiet strike troubles.

PITTSBURGH, June 12.—Convicted that mine disorders in Pennsylvania and Ohio may have tragic results unless halted at once, federal mediators today were determined to urge Secretary of Labor William N. Doak to intervene.

Fearing additional outbreaks like that reported near Steubenville when the home of a non-union miner was bombed, apparently by strikers whom he had refused to join, mediators returned to Washington to ask the secretary of labor to call a national parley between miners and operators.

HOME, HOSPITAL OFFICERS NAMED

Good Supply

Members of the office of Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff swooped down on several Pickaway-co localities between 5 and 11 p. m. Thursday and as a result several persons are in the county jail on charges of violating liquor laws. All members of the office, including Sheriff Radcliff, and Deputies Custer, Armstrong and Fissell, took part in at least one of the raids.

Newton Collett, residing on the Ben Yates farm in Deer Creek-twp, faces a second offense charge of possessing implements designed for the manufacture of intoxicating liquor. A 25-gallon still was found on the Collett place, the sheriff reports. Collett was fined $1,000 on the first offense charge, according to the authorities.

MILLER IS HELD

The second person to come under the surveillance of the law was John Miller of Monroe-twp who is booked for possessing implements to manufacture and possessing intoxicating liquor. Part of the still at Miller's place was found in the upstairs of the house and the remainder downstage. It was not in operation. A gallon of intoxicating liquor was found at the Miller place, it is reported.

'Shorty' Donaldson, Millport youth, is being held in the county jail pending hearing following a raid on the residence of Wesley Neff of that village. Donaldson was found at the house and after searching the premises 71 quarts and 20 pints of beer, several boxes of beer bottle caps and six cans of malt. GAS COS. OWE STATE MONEY

Ohio Fuel Gas Must Pay $456,176 in Back Tax, Atty.-Gen. Bettman Rules.

COLUMBUS, O., June 12.—By order of Attorney General Gilbert Bettman a ruling of the United States supreme court, nine utilities companies doing business in Ohio today were to be compelled to take steps to pay back taxes of $1,138,265 due for the years 1927 to 1930.

The taxes were ordered paid by the attorney general following the supreme court's order that the East Ohio Gas Co must pay the usual levy on electricity brought from outside the state. The gas company unsuccessfully contended that such electricity could not be taxed in Ohio.

Other companies which must pay similar taxes, the attorney general said, are: Northwest Natural Gas $122,851; Ohio Fuel Gas, $456,176; Manufacturers' Light & Heat, $59,198; Natural Gas of West Virginia, $8,981; United Fuel Gas, $17,281; River Gas, $4,039; Logan Gas, $37,002; Ohio Power, $409,674; Wheeling Electric Co., $23,038.

Stunt Ace Scared of Boys

Dorothy Heston, 19 years old and pretty, is known as the Queen of American stunt fliers—but, she's afraid of boys. This slim young girl, shown above with her instructor, Ted Rankin, at Cleveland, has performed every stunt known to aviation, although she has been flying less than a year. But she does admit she'd rather be somersaulting in the air than "dating" with the boys. Dorothy has been given a contract as a feature performer at the National Air Races in Cleveland in August, the first woman ever given such an honor.

CANNING SEASON IS STARTED IN COUNTY TODAY; 400 WORKING

Finest Pea Crop in Years Reported by Canning Companies As Men Swarm to Factories and Fields; Three Plants
Begin Operations.

With the opening of the canning season in the county Friday, approximately four hundred men were given employment. The canning of peas was started at Sears-Nichols, Winorr and the H. M. Crites factories, and according to information received from the managers of the factories, this year's pea crop is exceptionally good.

H. M. Crites opened a double-line plant at Ashville today, employing about 200 men and expecting to can approximately 1,000 acres of peas before the season closes. The Sears-Nichols Co. with approximately 500 acres of peas out, employed between 150 and 200 men including those in the plant and fields.

The Winorr Canning Co. also with a large acreage of peas employed about 150 men in the plant and fields.

According to authorities the ground this year has been in better condition for the pea crop than any other year for a long period of time. The ground has been kept soft with plenty of moisture soaking into it, which produced exceptional crop.

The pea crop will probably be canned until sometime in July when corn will be ready for canning. At this time the Esmeralda Canning Co. which cans corn alone will open and employ a large number of men.

According to officers at the various factories there were a larger number of applicants for work this year than has ever been known.

The payroll of the three factories now in operation combined will average better than $4,000 weekly according to information.

The canning institutions in the county will give employment to a large number of men during the summer, as following the pea and corn crop, tomatoes, lima beans, string beans, pumpkin and other vegetables will be canned.

It is interesting to note the demand among the young kids favorites among the Just Kids Club in selecting their membership buttons. One day there is a demand for Mush, who has been having a time with his recent engagement to Angelica, the next day the demand for Officer Brannon may take the lead. SOVIET RUSSIA DESCRIBED TO CLUBMEN HERE

Superintendent of Greenfield Schools Addresses
Rotary Club

DEPLORE CONDITION

Says Red Army In Evidence Everywhere

A splendid talk on Soviet Russia and its economic conditions was given before the Rotary Club, Thursday noon by Rotarian T. R. Harris, superintendent of the Greenfield schools.

Having traveled through Russia, Mr. Harris gave first hand information, and being a close observer told things that were of value to every listener. He explained the method of travel through Russia, and how even, though Soviet Russia is not recognized by the United States, American travelers are given good treatment.

He told of the once-beautiful city of Leningrad, being practically left to die, and the once-beautiful streets in a very bad state of repair. Other cities in Russia are also being neglected, he said.

Radios are being used throughout Russia to spread Soviet propaganda and everywhere may be found loud speakers broadcasting their information to the multitudes, the majority of whom are illiterate.

The Soviet Government has a large army, he said, and this Red army, well clothed, is quite conspicuous throughout Russia. Their air forces are also quite active, he stated.

"Women do manual labor in Russia and can be seen digging ditches and all other work that only men have been accustomed to do. The five days-a-week program is in effect," he stated, "and the workers are divided into the colors of Red, Blue, etc., and do not work on the day that is called the Red day, the Blue day or the like.

"HOME IN MAZE". "I went to Russia to learn more about the country that I had read so much about, but I went over in a daze and came home in a maze," he concluded.

Members of the Kiwanis Club attended the meeting as guests of the Rotary Club.

ATLANTIC CITY, June 12.—Arthur Brisbane, noted journalist, believes that communism in Russia is doomed to failure. He also scouted danger of a similar revolution in the United States as a result of the depression.

Addressing the national electric light association assembled in convention here last night at a banquet held in his honor, Brisbane predicted the "return of prosperity presently."

BUDGET NOW FACES SOLONS

House Passes Bill to Boost Automobile License Tags; Adjourn Next Week.

COLUMBUS, O., June 12.—With the major part of the taxation program—the intangible and motor vehicle tax bills—out of the way the path seemed clear today for the state legislature to pack up and adjourn next Thursday or Friday.

One of the biggest problems remaining to bother the assembly is the "bugaboo" budget and although the legislature was holding its customary week-end recess today the house finance committee met here to peruse over the task of lopping about $15,000,000 from the $74,000,000 biennial appropriation bill.

Next week the senate is expected to concur in the house amendments to the motor vehicle tax measure which was passed by the lower legislative branch yesterday. The bill passed the house by a vote of 72 to 45 and the only major change was the increase in the annual license fee on the high-priced cars from $20 to $25 and from $25 to $35.

Legislators estimate that the measure should produce about $25,000,000 annually in revenue which is to be distributed between state, counties and townships, part being used for local governmental operating expenses and the rest for highway improvement projects.

Governor George White is expected to send up his fourth message to the legislature early next week dealing with the taxation situation and the budget problem.

Governor's Plea For Tax's Trial Finally Heeded

By ELMER P. FRIES

COLUMBUS, O., June 12.—Influence of Governor George White that the Eighty-Ninth General Assembly keep faith with the people and give taxation of intangibles a fair trial bore fruit this week when the house approved, 86 to 36, the classification tax bill drafted by the special committee headed by Senator Robert A. Taft and previously passed by the senate.

Provided the measure, upon analysis in the Governor's office, is found to be free of defects and worthy of his indorsement, it will translate into reality the proposals made in his first message to the Republican controlled legislature, Jan. 13 when he demanded that pledges made to Ohio taxpayers be fulfilled.

It is estimated the bill will produce revenue of $27,000,000 a year. It repeals the present property tax on intangible property, such as stocks and securities. It provides instead of a tax of 5 per cent on the income from investments, 2 per cent tax on the real value of non-income-producing investments, 2 mills on bank and building and loan deposits and shares, 5 mills on capital employed in intangible investment business and 3 mills on other intangibles.

This represented by the drafting committee as assuring success in the attempt to tax wealth formerly hidden from tax collectors because the old uniform rates were confiscatory and thus to relieve the farmer and small home owner of millions of dollars of taxation.

It is the major enactment in the program presented to the legislators who so far have kept in mind Governor White's firm stand against income taxes and similar devices which he threatened to veto. Unbiased observers recalling his message commended his leadership which to date has blocked resort to taxation sources upon which he frowned.

They pointed to these phrases set forth for the guidance of legislators, predicted that tax measures still to be made law will conform with his warnings that the wishes of the public must be respected.

"You are well aware, your excellencies, the eighty-eighth General Assembly," submitted to the electors of Ohio in November, 1929, the question of amending the constitution so as to authorize the classification of property for taxation. The proposal was adopted by a vote of 710,000 to 510,000 and became effective January 1, last.

For 80 years the Constitution of Ohio has provided for the taxing of all classes of property by uniform rule according to its true value in money. An entirely new system of taxation must now be devised. It is of utmost importance that the new system be logical, reasonable, fair and just. The object of the amendment, so its proponents assured the electors of Ohio, is to relieve real estate of the undue burden of taxation which it has borne under the uniform rule. The relief to real estate, so the people were assured, is to be afforded by means of placing on the tax duplicate the billions of dollars worth of intangible wealth which up to this time has almost completely escaped taxation.

"It is the unmistakable duty of the General Assembly now to keep faith with the citizenry of the state. Classification of property and the taxing of the various classes at rates which will place intangibles on the duplicate in amounts sufficient to reduce taxes on real estate have been promised. Having by their votes sustained this view, the people now expect this pledge to be kept.

"As Governor I shall do everything in my power to bring about that result. I am opposed to the substitution of income or sales taxes or any other subterfuge to keep the brunt of the tax burden on the backs of the farm and home owners, the wage and average salary earners, until an earnest and honest effort has been made to secure the necessary revenues from other sources. The burden belongs where the ability to pay exists.

"The wealthy, the large corporations, especially the public utility corporations, which enjoy incomes virtually guaranteed through the public utilities commission and the courts; the banks, building and loan associations, mortgage corporations and reservoirs of invested capital everywhere have this ability to pay.

"The time has come when wealth and capital in all their forms date not be permitted longer to escape their full share of taxation. Not merely does the adoption of the classification amendment and the constitutional rate limitation on real estate make necessary the taxing of wealth and capital but the current economic depression makes it our only recourse. The value of farms and homes and the average income of the great body of taxpayers have diminished, and in many instances, the taxpaying ability has vanished entirely.

"Government must continue. Government can survive only on taxes. The taxes must be procured from sources able to pay them. In view of the new rate limitation on real estate, there remains only one available source from which these necessary revenues may be maintained, namely, capital.

"The wealth of Ohio is reputed to approximate thirty billions of dollars. The existing tax duplicate, that is, the property returned for taxation, amounts to only $13,600,000,000. This sum is composed of $13,000,000,000 in real estate and tangible personal property, and only $600,000,000 of intangible personal property. By intangibles, of course, I mean money, stocks, bonds and certificates of ownership of various kinds which are easily secreted from the view of the tax assessors."

Horsehair Hats Like Irish Lace Are Now Popular

PARIS—Women's heads were never lighter, for featherweight fabrics are making the most fashionable head-covering this spring.

One of the principal materials is horsehair which makes most of the openwork straws. Usually they are hand-woven in the modistes' work-room or crocheted into lace designs or even knitted. Nicole Bertin is making a lovely little hat of horsehair threads crocheted in Irish lace effect.

There is also an artificial horsehair and one of Rodier's new hat fabrics is jersey woven with horsehair and there is also horsehair picked out with light flecks of wool.

String too, is making some novel little light-weight hats and cellophane which is a mesh composed of threads of straw intricately woven with broader pieces. Paper panama is also a favorite in light-weights.

Shantung, jersey and gros grain ribbon are making other light-weight hats for summer wear. Many hats have crowns made of separate pieces beautifully moulded to the head. Alice Cocea, popular French actress, wears one in her newest play "Richard," and adds the brim which she carries on her arm as the occasion demands.

Flowers make pretty bonnets that are by no means heavy on the head. Sometimes there is a slit in one side to pull through little curls.

24 Companies Hire 541 Men Figures Show

Pickaway-co's 24 manufacturing establishments paid 541 employees, which is an average number for the year, $519,955 in wages in 1929, according to a report of the 1930 manufacturing census recently released. The value of products manufactured in the county in this same year was $2,908,808 and the cost of materials, fuels and purchased electrical energy was $1,515,267 the report stated.

The value of products manufactured in Ohio in 1929 was estimated at almost six billion dollars, according to the bureau of census figures issued at Washington.

Wages earners of the state numbered 737,469 and their pay was $1,103,983,912.

Horse power of electrical energy used in Pickaway-co's 24 manufacturing plants was 4,080, according to the report.

The number of wage earners through the state was boasted about 10 percent.

Out of a possible 3,000 working men only 541 were regular employed in the manufacturing plants in this county, the report disclosed.

SCHALL CALLS ON ENGLAND, FRANCE TO MODIFY CLAIMS

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The agitation in Europe over suggestions for a revision or moratorium on German reparations found an echo here today with Senator Schall (R) of Minnesota, calling on England and France to modify their war claims against Germany.

Schall suggested the allies extend the same terms of payment to Germany that the United States has given them on their war debts. He said this plan would require England to forgive her fixed sum or reparations and accept interest payments at 3.7 per cent a year for a period of 62 years. For France, he added, the settlement would be interest payments at 2.17 per cent a year for the same period.

"There has been too much talk that the United States should do something for Europe," said Schall. "Let Europe help herself by helping to put Germany back on her economic feet."

"We loaned $12,000,000,000 to 12 different nations. We cancelled all those loans and accepted interest payments in return, ranging from 3.7 per cent for England down to 1.1 per cent for Italy. We have done all we can do to help Europe. We can't do anything more if we consider the plight of our own people."

"Europe has been telling the German people that we are getting all her reparations. We got nothing out of the war in reality. England got one third the globe, while France, and Italy filled their pockets. All we got was prohibition and yet we're called Uncle Shylock."

"If England and France really want to help Europe, let them accept the same arrangement with Germany on her reparations that we gave them on their war debts to us. It would put Germany on her feet and would help the whole world to recover from depression."

While members of the senate generally have favored easier terms to Germany, even to the extent of forgiving all American reparations, there has been stern opposition on Capitol Hill to any further modification in the war debt settlements. Many senators have pointed out that the United States took the lead in modifying war debts by negotiating settlements, which forgive the debts themselves in return for interest payments.

"It is a mistake too to agitate the debt question," observed Senator Harris (D) of Georgia. "Europe always links reparations to debts. Talking about reparations or debts always gives encouragement to the European statesmen who ask for a reduction in their debt payments to us. We shall not reduce those payments further."

REJUVENATION OF REDS MAY HALT TRADES

Si Johnson Wins Fifth Game, Beating Dazzy Vance and Jack Quinn.

By LES KONKIN

NEW YORK, June 12.—Due to the phenomenal success of the Cincinnati ball club against the eastern teams during the past ten days, it would not be surprising if the scheduled trade between the Reds and New York Giants is called off.

According to New York baseball scribes, a deal involving Red Lucas or Ray Kolp, Cincinnati right-hand pitchers, and several New York players is to be announced on Sunday, the deadline for major league trades. The Reds are now going so well, however, that any swap not advantageous to the club would be sure to bring down the wrath of the Rhineland fans upon the club owners' heads.

On June 3 the Reds were so deeply imbedded in the Nation league cellar that it seemed only Lord Carnation or Chapman Andrews could excavate them. They were 9 1-2 games out of seventh place and all seemed lost, including Sidney Weil's bankroll. Then Harvey Hendrick, obtained from Brooklyn, began to make his presence felt.

Today the good burghers of Cincinnati are again thronging the ball park in increasing numbers. And those who are broke are parking in the scores of reformed beer gardens around Fountain Square to watch the line scores. The rejuvenated Reds have copped eight of their last nine starts, the victims being Philadelphia, Boston and Brooklyn. They are only five games behind the seventh-place Phillies.

Dan Howley assured the writer a couple of weeks ago that he had a good ball club and would do much better as soon as his injured stars returned to the line-up, but not even howling Dan could have believed that his club would break out into such a batting rash.

During the past week, including yesterday's game, seven of the team's regulars enjoyed a combined batting average of no less than .434. Since last Saturday the slugging septet compiled the following ferocious mark:

Crabtree .538, Rootger .516, Cuccinello .500, Sukeforth .450, Cullop, .381, Hendrick .370 and Stripp .321. Crabtree fattened his average by 42 points, Rootger 25, Sukeforth 32, Cuccinello 29, Cullop 16 and Stripp 8.

Howley's seven sluggers now have the following averages for the season, including yesterday's game.

Hendrick .385, Rootger .359, Cuccinello .316, Crabtree .306, Cullop .271, Asbyjornson, the rookie catcher, is hitting .285.

Silas Johnson, the rookie pitcher from Columbus who beat Brooklyn yesterday in eleven innings, 2 to 1, leads the club's hurlers with five victories. He is the best recruit boxman in the league, in the writer's opinion, and might

RENO FEARS COMPETITION IN GAINFUL DIVORCE INDUSTRY

NEW YORK—The profitable divorce industry, which is a $4,000,000-a-year gift to Reno, has been saved for Nevada by the new six-weeks law, but there is a continuous threat of competition from neighbor states which would like to have the business. Sheriff Trahan of Washoe County has been maintaining the situation and the long and short of it is that competition really had a good deal to do with the hurried passage of the new law—competition from Arkansas, Idaho and other states whose legislators saw in liberal laws a new way to increase state income.

Three or four months ago somebody in Arkansas decided that there would be good money for merchants, hotel keepers, lawyers and others in the divorce business, if only Arkansas could wrest the leadership from Nevada. Promptly a bill was introduced in the Arkansas legislature allowing divorce in that state after a 90-day residence. After a rather brisk battle, the bill was passed.

by the lawyer and handed to his stenographer. She has only to follow an office form in preparing the papers. It is simply a routine matter. "The law making thirty-five dollars an attorney's maximum fee a divorce did not pass, but the state bar association was able to fix as low a figure as that as the minimum fee."

Not a voice was raised on the floor of either house against the new law. Very few spoke for it. It went through almost unanimously.

CROP REPORT MADE IN OHIO

Wheat at 98 Per Cent Mark, Highest Degree in 40 Years, Ratio Shows.

Crops in general made slow progress during May in Ohio because of cool weather. Moisture was needed particularly in the west central and parts of northwestern Ohio. Some frost damage to corn, tobacco, tomatoes and fruit occurred during the last week in May. Cut worms are more numerous than usual and have caused some damage to corn, potatoes, tomatoes and tobacco seed beds.

Ohio winter wheat is in excellent condition at 98 per cent on June 1 which is the highest condition on this date for forty years with the exception of 1919, according to A. R. Tuttle of the Federal Crop Reporting Service. Although some fields are lodging the prospects on June 1 were for a crop of 37,980,000 bushels compared with 28,640,000 bushels last year and the 5-year average of 27,000,000 bushels.

Oats condition is reported at 87 per cent which is 13 points above last year on June 1 and 8 points above the 10-year average. Barley with a condition of 89 per cent is 7 points above average.

Rye prospects indicate a crop of 1,106,000 bushels compared with the 5-year average of 663,000 bushels.

Tame hay condition at 80 per cent on June 1 is up to the average on this date. Pastures are reported at 84 per cent or slightly below average.

Fruit prospects in Ohio are considerably above average although cool weather during the last week in May with a freeze on May 24 cut the prospects of one month ago. No forecast of apple production will be made until next month, however, the June 1 condition is 23 points above the average condition of 63 per cent. Peaches promise a better crop than other fruits in Ohio this year with an indicated production of 2,340,000 bushels or nearly double the 5-year average of 1,350,000 bushels. Pear prospects were reduced by cool weather during blossom time although the indicated production is 360,000 bushels or about 12 per cent above the 5 year average.

For the United States winter wheat prospects are slightly below last month but still well above average. Corn prospects are below average on June 1. Condition of spring wheat and barley are lowest on record for June 1. Condition is somewhat above the average and tame hay prospects are below average. The apple and peach prospects are well above average and pears slightly below. Early potatoes are yielding well.

United States production in millions of bushels.

Winter wheat 5-year average 1925-1929, 547, 1930 603, indicated by condition June 1, 1931, 649.

Rye 5 year average, 1925-1929, 46, 1930 50, indicated by condition June 1, 1931, 44.

Peaches 5-year average 1925-1929, 55, 1930, 54, indicated by condition June 1, 1931, 78.

Pears, 5-year average 1925-1929, 22, 1930 28, indicated by condition June 1, 1931, 24.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING WINS PRAISE OF TOBACCO COMPANY

NEW YORK—"Newspaper advertising, which ranks as a moulder of public opinion second only to news and editorials, can play an important part in reviving business confidence," says a statement issued today by the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., manufacturers of Chesterfield cigarettes, in connection with the opening of an advertising campaign in 180 papers throughout the United States. "This company is one of the largest users of newspaper space and it believes that newspaper advertising can definitely assist to inspire the same thinking and constructive planning which will lead us back to a sounder prosperity."

"In the present economic situation national advertising has a unique opportunity to center public attention upon the fact that the main source of our national greatness is the vast army of men and women who do their daily tasks conscientiously and well. The basis of our new Chesterfield campaign, which will reach more than 50,000,000 readers, is recognition and praise of the services to society performed by these industrial and professional workers."

Under the slogan "Good—they've got to be good!" each advertisement in the series deals with a different class of industrial or professional worker. Among the interesting facts and figures presented are the following:

To operate the railroads of the country requires 1,215,809 men, a large proportion of whom are obliged to sacrifice many of the joys and comforts of home life.

The central telephone office operators of the country, 155,000 in number, handle 65,000,000 calls every 24 hours.

The 373,230 men and women in Uncle Sam's postoffice handle 76,550,000 pieces of mail matter every day.

At the tap of the gong more than a half a million firemen are ready to rescue life and property.

Based upon government census reports and other sources of information, the Liggett & Myers Company estimates the number of persons engaged in other occupations, as follows: Policemen, 133,000; Druggists and pharmacists, 110,000; steel and iron workers, 393,000; stenographers and typists, 655,900; nurses, 125,546; physicians, 152,503; licensed air pilots 15,305; telegraph operators, 79,434; theatrical and motion picture actors and other employees, 342,000; newspaper workers, 119,399; attorneys-at-law, 79,434; saleswomen in retail stores, 413,688.

FOR CLASSIFIED readers a little money goes a long way.

AT THE GRAND

"While I believe that Edna Ferber's 'Cimarron' affords me the greatest role of my career, I dislike to say so," says Richard Dix in speaking of his latest screen portrayal—Yancey Cravat—opening at the Grand theater Sunday.

"It is hardly fair to compare a talkies role with a silent one," he explained.

"I have a soft spot in my heart for 'The Christian' and 'The Vanishing American,' my best two characterizations out of fifty silent pictures."

"So I prefer to let them stand on their silent merits."

"In 'Cimarron,' for the first time in my life, I portray a man's gradual deterioration over a period of forty years. I also was given the task of creating the sympathy, glamour, color and mystery of the Edna Ferber hero already enshrined in the hearts of millions of readers."

"I never worked so hard in my life—or enjoyed a role more." I never expected to have a greater part."

AT THE CLIFTONA

William Haines, big business, love, financial troubles of a nation and a formula for prosperity—these are all woven into a lifting, scintillating comedy in which runs a charming little love story.

These are the ingredients of "A Tailor Made Man," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's latest William Haines vehicle, which will come Friday to the Cliftona theater.

Haines play a smart young American (business-like rather than wise-cracking) who isn't satisfied with his job. He discovers a new "racket." As a result, he becomes a "big shot." America is full of fellows with the same story.

A magic name is that of "Jack" in the production, "Skippy." Paramount's new talking featurization of Percy Crosby's beloved cartoon kid, which will be the Cliftona Theater's chief attraction, three days beginning Sunday.

The part of Skippy is played by Jackie Cooper, six-year-old tow-head.

Sooky is played by Robert Coogan, whose older brother Jackie Coogan became the screen's leading child actor through the "The Kid," made when he was the same age that Robert now is.

Jackie Searl, of "Tom Sawyer" and "Pinn and Hattie" fame, is seen as the boy next door to Skippy's house.

Jack Clifford, adult screen actor, is the dog catcher, the "deedlyed" villain in the lives of the juvenile characters.

Antiques Are Of Value To U. S. Library

At this time of the year, Circleville's busy housewives may find it worthwhile to carefully inspect old letters, manuscripts, documents, books, coins or other forgotten objects as attics and cellars are visited in annual summer cleaning.

At least, "finds" made in cellar or attic should be retained until they are checked by some reliable person, or sent to the Congressional Library at Washington D. C., for inspection.

Several fairly valuable old letters, old books and an 1860 newspaper were unearthed in this vicinity recently. These discoveries might prove valuable at the Congressional Library.

Housecleaners are asked by collectors in all parts of the country to keep all "finds" and officials of the national library are urging that no records that appear to have the slightest historical value be destroyed until proven worthless.

Accidental discoveries in attics of old letters, books dust-covered manuscripts and documents have assisted historians in working out the dim history in American life. Facts concerning famous men and women have been revealed through papers found in different parts of the nation.

Most annuals will continue to bloom through the entire summer if all the flowers are cut off as soon as they begin to mature. This prevents the formation of seed which is a devastating process.

Thrifty Smokers
The late Thomas R. Marshall must have been badly misinformed on the state of the nation or conditions have altered radically since he made that immortal utterance to the effect that the country's greatest need was a five-cent cigar.

Of 7,000,000,000 cigars made in the country in the last year no less than 42 per cent were intended to sell for not more than a nickel. Only 2 per cent, a mere trifle of 140,000,000 cigars, were designed to sell for more than 15 cents. The annual consumption of anything like a luxury cigar amounts to a little more than one per capita.

This would suggest that American prosperity, through a real thing in itself and more so by comparison with foreign standards, is not quite the Babylonianism it is commonly described to be. It may be, of course, that even an American income cannot be indefinitely stretched and what is spent on automobiles and etcetera must be made up in other directions. But there would be evidence to show that luxury is not fatally corroding the economic and moral fibre of the nation.

Simple tastes have not disappeared. Americans still consume thirty-five-cent cigars per capita annually. The 5 and 10 stores grow like weeds and multiply like rabbits.

Collectively the American people may seem to be on a spending spree, not even approximated by the profligacy and extravagance of the ancients, but individually they are guided in their spending not by a desire to squander money but by a desire to get the most of life and the most out of their money.

Routing "Realism"
Despite the revolt against sentiment and sentimentalism on the part of the practitioners in realistic art, life every little while insists on trusting forth a denial of the Zolas and Dreisers in affirmation of the Charles Dickens.

Among the "myths" that have been more or less satisfactorily debunked are the devotion, sacrifice and unquestioning acceptance of old-fashioned duty practiced by the common man. The obligation in general and in favor of the rights of self.

Yet in these modern times one finds a humble immigrant supporting his invalid brother and the latter's family of ten. There are thousands of young men and women working to give brothers and sisters an education that they may be fully armored for the battles of life. There are fathers and mothers slaving for their children and children making the greatest of sacrifices for aged parents. And, though the divorce rate soars and the happy married life out of date, there are still husbands and wives so old-fashioned as to be devoted to each other to the extent of great sacrifice.

These survivors of that age when sacrifice was its own reward and sentiment was omnipotent are probably sinning against their own higher self, but they explain why man clings to romance. Humanity persists in finding its own highest self expressed in the one case of unselfishness against the nine opposite cases recorded by the "realist."

Can the Bureau Do This?
CIGARETTES, carelessly cast aside in waste baskets, from corners and forest, annually cause a loss estimated at $50,000,000. It may be much more.

For years the world has been doing something about it. Efforts were made to make careless smokers careful with a mail culture. Every strategy known in danger from discarded butts and wire gards it.

A newly invented cigarette which will not smolder after being laid aside solves the problem. Dropped or laid aside, it quickly goes out instead of running the ton of the deck of the nation's oil or starting a destructive fire.

Smokers will not agree, however, that this is the better way from the waste of a millionth of a cigarette. It has been the common experience of puffing mankind that a cigarette is thrown away, a fire to a forest, but if a cigarette is laid carefully upon a tray for a moment, it instantly goes out. MA KNIGHT COMES FLYING

Following the crash of his plane in Joan Marbury's Florida orange groves, young and wealthy Dave Ordway is content with the peaceful life on the plantation that is a contrast to his former pleasure-seeking existence. Adventure awaits him here, however. Mueller, brutal owner of the adjoining groves, is trying to force his attentions upon Joan. He robs Dave and burns his plane because Dave refuses his demands for damage to Mueller's property in landing. Joan's cousin, Sally, who lives on the plantation, is in love with Dave, but he is more attracted by the reserved Joan. When Dave's erstwhile fiancée, Barbara Holworthy, and his friends, Gerry Flemming and Talbot Henderson, visit him, he is aware of the antagonism among the girls. Gerry recognizes Mueller as "Snatch" Cazzoni, a bootlegger. The boys leave to steal Mueller's plane to replace Dave's. They discover Mueller's liquor store.

CHAPTER XX
FROM the open door leading to the kitchen came a strange sound which, at first, appeared to be caused by the moaning of some small animal in distress. Dave straightened up, his muscles tense, his eyes searching the darkness. The sound strengthened in volume, quickened in cadence. The unmistakable strains of the "Graveyard Blues" moaned through the dismal house.

Silence Preferred
Dave sprinted through the kitchen and out into the patio, followed by the heavier-footed Talbot. There, silhouetted in the flood of moonlight, was Gerry, seated on the edge of the porch, his hands cupped tenderly over the gleaming harmonica, his dozing head, putting yawn to the throat. He stared owlishly at companions, ended his music, a quivering blue note and reached for an uncorked bottle which stood close by his elbow. He gazed at the stars through the upturned bottle.

"Ah!" he exclaimed. "I'm feeling better and better. I could beat three liver-knocks in a tiger's tail."

The harmonica went to his mouth again, but vanished instantly as Dave made a sudden lunge for it.

"What are you trying to do, you fool?" Dave demanded. "Wake up the whole neighborhood."

"It's a lonely neighborhood," declared Gerry dolefully. "No one's waking up. It's a long time since I've felt as good as I do now."

Talbot lifted the bottle and surveyed it critically.

"Half gone," he murmured. "Quick work. He'll be as tight as a drum in an onion all night now. In the morning he'll just need a drink of water to get jangled again."

Inviting Trouble
"Be glad to go," announced Gerry, gravely, "but I'm sloshed. Think I'll go back to the field and look for Mueller. Don't like him, in spite of his good liquor."

"Pipe down," ordered Dave. "You're tight, all right. You're always tight when you're talkative and get ideas. Talbot, you'll have to go." He stepped up on the flag porch and looked over the wall and across the tangle of underbrush on the other side. "The county road that runs past the girls' house must come straight through this development. There's another one of these deserted houses right next to us and still another beyond that. The chances are that you'll find the road just the other side of that third house. I wish you'd find it and then walk down the road to Joan's. Tell the girls to stay where they are until we return."

Talbot's eyes followed the line of his pointing arm.

"I'm getting a little stoutheaded to do any trail-blazing," he objected tentatively, "and my dogs begin to growl when I walk very far."

"Where's Mueller?" demanded Gerry, standing up and swaying gently as though he were adjusting himself to the deck of a pitching boat. "Must see Mueller."

Dave placed a strong hand on his friend's chest and pushed. Gerry sat down very hard.

"The exercise will do you good, Talbot," said Dave, firmly. "You can drive back in Gerry's car. Bring back a couple of good flashlights with you. Gerry and I'll have a look at those other two houses. You'll find us there when you come back. Make it snappy, for there's no telling how soon our bootlegger friends will show up."

"I get all over gooseflesh even looking at that scrub," grumbled Talbot. "If a snake starts to wriggle up my pant leg, I'll die of the shock and it'll be all your fault."

"Go away, Talbot," added Gerry, peevishly. "I can see two of you. That's too much for any man to stand. Go away or I'll smack you."

"Souse," hissed Talbot. "I wish Dave would turn you loose and let Mueller carve his initials in your thick hide!"

With that he left, muttering to himself as he picked his way through the knee-high underbrush at the edge of the rutted road.

"What's the matter, girls?" asked the disheveled and perspiring Talbot. "You look as though you'd been spending the evening playing 'Quaker Meeting' or something."

"It's a fine mess! I'm all covered with sand burrs, eaten alive with mosquitoes, slashed by creepers and scared to a perfect twitter by snakes. I'm afraid to put my hand in my pocket for fear there's a scorpion in there. I want to go to bed and have a nice, quiet cry, but instead of that I've got to go back and play hide-and-seek with a couple of fighting fools who will keep on looking for trouble until they find it. It's all very depressing. Where can I find a couple of flashlights?"

"How in the world did you happen to go to Cathy?" demanded Joan.

"It seemed like a good idea at the time. We just got on the loose and one thing led to another. And by the way, Dave sent word that you were all to stay here until we came back."

He stirred uncomfortably as Joan's level blue eyes studied his face. There was something in her expression that made him believe she was filling in most of the gaps in his story. Sally and Barbara had scarcely listened. They were eyeing one another in thinly-veiled hostility. There was a tension in the air not unlike that in the dark, eerie path through the jungle. He wondered if he, Dave and Gerry, would return later to find the three girls tearing each other's hair. Barbara yawned again and rose from her chair.

"I'm going back with you," she said flatly. "When Gerry is tight he's rather a treat, you know. It happens so seldom that I'd hate to miss watching him. Then, when you're finished whatever it is you're going to do, we'll all drive back to civilization."

Talbot stared at her, his eyes wide with astonishment.

Not Wanted
"A girl's place is in the home, Babs, darling," he said at last. "You're a sweet young thing and all that, but you would be as much help to us as the seven-year itch. Dave said for you to stay here."

"Dave won't be really angry when he sees me," she said, with a brief glance at Joan and Sally. "He's always telling me to do the most ridiculous things. It's just his way of being masculine."

"I'm going, too," said Joan, calmly. "I know every nook and corner of Cathy. If there's any trouble there I can help you."

Talbot turned and bowed to Sally with elaborate politeness.

New cabbage, one of the most appetizing and nutritious of all vegetables, is on the market now in such quantities that its cost is approximately the same as for last year's crop sold in the winter. It can be brought for from three to four cents a pound according to the Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture, which highly recommends its use in the more elaborate as well as in the low cost diet.

A pound of cabbage when cooked makes about five servings. Practically the whole head is edible.

Cabbage is a protective food because of its mineral and vitamin content. Calcium is perhaps its most important mineral. It also contains some sulphur compounds which are responsible for the decided odor that develops when it is overcooked. If cabbage is cooked quickly in an open kettle this undesirable feature will be avoided entirely and there will be no tendency to discoloration, the bureau says.

Raw and cooked cabbage differ in their Vitamin C content for heat destroys much of this anti-scorbutic vitamin. The loss of this vitamin in heating varies with different vegetables but usually much of it is destroyed in cooking. Some of the soluble substances are left in the liquid after the vegetable is cooked. It this "pot likker" is utilized the loss is lessened.

Raw cabbage ranks with oranges, juice and tomatoes among the richest sources of Vitamin C. Fortunately raw cabbage is a delicious as well as inexpensive food and lends itself to many combination dishes. It can be served as a salad with other vegetables or fruits, or can be chopped fine for sandwiches, raw vegetable sandwiches and, since a deficiency of Vitamin C causes irritability, lack of stamina, and retardation of growth, food which offer a generous supply should be eaten in abundance.

Green raw cabbage leaves are richer in Vitamin A and iron than the white ones. The inner cabbage leaves are relatively poor in this vitamin but it is not destroyed to any serious degree by ordinary cooking. Both Vitamins A and C are protective vitamins since they are a defence against nutritional deficiencies that are most likely to appear when diet is composed too largely of grain products, meat, sweets, and fats.

The other important vitamin found in cabbage is known as B, the antineuritic vitamin that prevents beri-beri and stimulates the appetite. This one is more stable than C in cooking.

The bureau sums up the vitamin worth of cabbage by saying that it is most valuable when eaten raw. The proportion of the vitamins lost in cooking depends upon the length of time and whether or not the cooking water with its soluble constituents is saved.

Another virtue of cabbage, in addition to its mineral and vitamin contents, is that it adds desirable bulk in a non-irritating form.

There are many varieties of the cabbage family on the market, chief among which are common cabbage, kale, collards, brussels sprouts, cauliflower and broccoli. All the others are much more extensive than cabbage, which is unique in the fact that it is to be had throughout the year at reasonable rates. Cauliflower, for instance, is often identified as "the cabbage with a college education." We find when we go to market that the more patriotic the variety of cabbage, the higher the cost.

New cabbage is available except for the comparatively brief period from the time of heavy frost until January, when the first shipments begin from the Rio Grande Valley of Texas. In the interlude "old" cabbage is on the market.

Children as young as two years old may have cooked cabbage provided it has not been cooked too long. In preparing it for the table the bureau says not to throw away the outer green leaves for they are the most valuable part of the head. Any discarded leaves might well find their way into the soup kettle.

Cabbage sprouts, which grow on the stalk after the head is cut, are very tender and are green practically all the way through. When boiled, they require only about five or six minutes to cook. They are especially delicious if scalloped with cheese sauce or mixed with other greens and cooked with bacon.

RECIPES

Cabbage with Cheese Sauce
1 medium-sized head of cabbage.
4 tablespoons flour.
4 tablespoons butter or other fat.
2 cups milk.
1-2 teaspoon salt.
1 cup grated cheese.
Cook the cabbage in boiling salted water until just tender. The length of time depends upon the size of pieces (cut into quarters or eighths, the cabbage should cook in 15 minutes or less). Prepare a sauce of the flour, fat, milk, and salt, cooking in a double boiler. When the sauce is cooked, add the grated cheese, stirring until melted. Pour the sauce over the drained cabbage and serve.

To make cabbage au gratin put the cooked cabbage in a greased baking dish, pour over the sauce, cover with buttered bread crumbs, and bake for about 20 minutes in a moderate oven, or until the crumbs are a golden brown.

Cream of Vegetable Soup
2 tablespoons finely chopped rutabaga turnip.
2 tablespoons finely chopped carrots.
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion.
2 tablespoons finely chopped celery.

2 tablespoons melted fat.
1 tablespoon flour.
1 quart milk.
1 1-2 teaspoons salt.
Cook the finely chopped vegetables in the fat for 10 minutes, add the flour, and stir until all are well blended. In the meantime heat the milk in a double boiler, add a little of it to the vegetable mixture, stir well, combine with the rest of the milk, add the salt, and cook for 10 minutes. The flavor is improved if the soup is allowed to stand for a short time to blend before serving. Reheat and serve.

Panned Cabbage
Cut the cabbage in small pieces, but do not shred it so that it becomes stringy when cooked. Cook it gently in a heavy skillet in a small amount of fat, using about two tablespoons to each quart of cabbage. It should be cooked for from 5 to 15 minutes, depending upon how young it is. When tender, season with salt, pepper, meat broth, or other desired flavors. If sausage and cabbage are to be served at the same meal, the cabbage can be cooked in the skillet first. Pour off most of the fat leaving two or three tablespoons in which the cabbage may be cooked.

Suggestions for salads.
Cabbage and carrot salad, equal parts of each vegetable.
Shredded cabbage and thin onion rings.
Cabbage and crushed pineapple, mixed with mayonnaise.
The peppery core of young tender cabbage, chopped and used in place of celery.

Thrills Feature Opening of Ring Tournament

Golden Gloves Finals Tonight

Here's the schedule for the Golden Gloves tournament finals tonight at Evert's arena:

Don Brannan vs. Freddie Brungs, lightweight;
Al Van Fossen vs. Merle Davis, featherweights;
John Wright vs. Donald Young, heavyweights;
Dan Brannan vs. K. O. Hill, middleweights;
James Hamilton vs. Mike Shenker, welterweights.

The bouts begin at 8 o'clock and when the evening has ended fight bugs will say they have really seen something worth while. The preliminaries were fought Thursday evening before a fair-sized crowd, and that old arena should be packed to the brim this evening after the fights Thursday evening. Everything that could have happened in a fight ring did, and how!

ACTION BEGINS

Starting with the very first bout of the evening when Virgil Miller and Harold Brown, paperweights, or something, hopped through three rounds of action. Neither boy hurt the other, because of the size of the bed-ticks they carried on their hands, but from the time they entered the ring until they came out there wasn't a bit of stalling. Harold Brown was given Referee Eddie Townley's decision because of his aggressiveness. He measured several nice wallop on his opponent's chin and carried the fight after the first round. This was not a Golden Gloves bout but just an eye-opener of what was to come.

The first Golden Gloves bout at 135 pounds, saw Don Brannan beat tough Kid Moats to the draw, to paste him two right smashes on the 'button' which put 'The Kid' into the land of dreams, and believe you us, he was there. The two boys mixed at the gong, rather Simon Frank's bell, with Brannan leaping clean across the ring to take Moats before he had a chance.

Moats touched Brannan a couple nice swats, but fighting close in, Brannan drove a right from the shoulder to Moats' chin and repeated the action, to floor his opponent. Moats tried to get up but couldn't. The K. O. came in 45 seconds of fighting.

TECHNICAL K. O.

The featherweight scrap between Al Van Fossen and Paul Beck ended when Beck was not permitted to return to the ring after the first round. Each boy suffered a cut over his left eye in the round which was decidedly Van Fossen's.

Scram Rambo won the Golden Gloves for the flyweight class when he won Referee John Rooney's decision after three rounds of milling with Dub Anderson. Rambo's edge was not a great one, but his blows carried enough steam to give him the margin. Both boys started each round in fast style but tired before the second minute was started.

Then came the bout that brought the house down.

HEAVY IN ACTION

Chuck Sterling and John Wright went through the ropes to meet in the heavyweight bout of the evening, and when they did the fans settled back in their seats awaiting the outcome. And, it didn't take long.

Sterling carried the fight through the first round, when Wright appeared afraid and hung on at every chance. Once he grabbed Sterling's knees.

But advice between the first and second rounds, after Wright had dazed Sterling with a smashing right just as the bell ended the first go, gave the former confidence and he went out to stop Sterling. He did.

A series of hard rights to the chin had Sterling in a bad way. After being down to a count of nine Sterling came up but to prevent further punishment, Referee Eddie Townley stopped the go, awarding the decision to Wright.

The card was a sensational one. Everything happened. And that crowd of spectators that will be on hand this evening, should fill the old arena. It's something to see a good fighter enter the ring for the money he gets from it, but when a bunch of 'simon-pures' enter the squared circle to fight because they like it, that's something else.

Every fighter who went into the ring was examined by Dr. B. R. Bales.

WILL INVESTIGATE ILLNESS OF FIVE

CHICAGO, June 12.—A mysterious malady developed by five girls employed in a radio tube manufacturing concern was to be investigated today.

Mrs. Joseph Keim, 35, died from it being in the hospital for the second time into months from an illness which physicians could not diagnose.

Dr. H. E. Jones said:

"The officials of the company told me what she used in her work and there is a complete record of it at the hospital. I would not sign a death certificate believing an inquiry was necessary."

COCO COLAS SHOW REVERSAL OF FORM, DEFEAT RED MEN 9

Bob Maloney Hurls Five-hit Ball While Mates Show Tight Defense; Each Team Counts Two Double Plays; Game is Tied Until Eighth Frame When Four Runs Settles Issue.

Playing good ball behind Bob Maloney's five-hit pitching the Coca Colas turned back the much-trampled Red Men at Utilities Thursday evening; the score was 7-3.

For seven innings the contest was nip and tuck with the count tied at 3-all, but in the eighth the Coca Colas hopped on Ray Smith for four runs to win the ball game.

The pop-shoppers started with three markers in the first frame, but the Red Men tied the ball game when they counted a long run in the first, third and fourth frames. From then on it was a mound duel between Maloney and Smith, until the eighth frame when the Redskin tosser weakened to permit the winning tallies. Davis, Wilson, Geib, Thompson and Baucher connected for consecutive hits to score the runs.

Bob Maloney pitched a good game of ball for the Coca Cola team limiting the Red Men to five hits, one a line triple to center field by Cotty Radcliff. No Red Man hitter connected safely more often than once. The bottlers hit:

JUST KIDS Safety Club Applauded By New York Police Commissioner

THE POLICE COMMISSIONER
CITY OF NEW YORK

April 3, 1931.

Mr. Ad Carter,
King Features Syndicate, Inc.,
235 East 45th Street,
New York City.

My dear Mr. Carter:

The work of the "Just Kids Safety Club" as originated by you and conducted in connection with your "Just Kids" daily comic strip, is in my judgment one of the most effective movements for saving children from accidental death or injury that has ever been launched in this country. I want to congratulate you as the originator of this safe club idea.

Yours for fewer traffic casualties,

Edward P. Mulrooney
POLICE COMMISSIONER

Above, Commissioner Mulrooney congratulates Ad Carter, creator of JUST KIDS comic, and founder of the Safety Club, on his great work. Below is the commissioner's letter endorsing the club and its work.

Children are the apple of New York Police Commissioner Mulrooney's eye. Here you see him with Eileen and Wallace Carter, daughter and son of Ad Carter, founder of the JUST KIDS Safety Club. Commissioner Mulrooney gives the club all the support in his power.

The JUST KIDS Safety Club has the unqualified approval of the man who knows most about the dangers of automobile traffic to children. That man is Edward P. Mulrooney, Commissioner of Police of the City of New York.

"The work of the 'Just Kids Safety Club' is, in my judgment, one of the most effective movements for saving children from accidental death or injury that has ever been launched in this country," Commissioner Mulrooney says.

In New York, where the world's heaviest traffic chokes the streets from dawn until late into the night, and where danger to children from automobiles is multiplied many times, the JUST KIDS Safety Club enrolled OVER 400,000 MEMBERS.

Commissioner Mulrooney applauds the efforts of Ad Carter, who draws the JUST KIDS comic strip and founded the JUST KIDS Safety Club, and when they met recently, he gave voice to his pleasure at the work of the club.

"I want to congratulate you as the originator of the safety club idea," he told the cartoonist. "The club has instilled in the children of school age a spirit of co-operation with police departments in their efforts to eliminate accidents to children."

Commissioner Mulrooney pointed out that it is difficult to attribute the saving of any definite number of lives to the work of the JUST KIDS Safety Club, but said that he believed that the death toll in traffic would be much greater if the club did not exist.

"This belief is borne out by the fact that in cities where the JUST KIDS Safety Club has been represented, there has been a notable decline in the percentage of child deaths and accidents," he said.

The Herald is sponsoring the JUST KIDS Safety Club in this territory.
